Double DEC in music and science - Marianopolis 2016 (projected)

I've always loved to help people learn, and am dedicated to figuring out how each of my students learns best. Having spent years tutoring at school, working with friends on homework, and now more recently coaching skating, I especially appreciate how different people learn in different ways. As someone with various interests, I believe that varied perspectives enrich and inform the learning process. An active skater myself and a student of science, for instance, I enjoy applying knowledge of physics to improve jumps, spins, and even stroking techniques. Of course, underpinning all this is my dedication and love for the sport. At the end of the day, while we all think and work differently, it is important to never forget that we skate because we love it.
